WEEKLY REFLECTION

The sacrament of penance is a Visible assurance that God has not abandoned us.

He has not dismissed us as irredeemable.

Today in Matthew we have the parable of two sons, the moral lines are clearly drawn between good and bad, light and darkness.

The parable draws a contrast between the early response of the two sons to the father's request to "go and work in the vineyard today". The son who refused at the beginning, relents and then does the job. The other son agrees without any protest when first asked but then chooses to do nothing.

Our Lord poses this question to His disciples, "Which of the two did the father's will?" And just like the disciples, our answer would be "the first."

What is the difference between the first son and the second?

If sin is clearly demonstrated as disobedience, the first son, after open refusal, repents of his sin—better late than never—and goes to work for his father. He changes from bad to good, yields to his father's instruction, changing direction and does as his father commanded him—the fruit of his repentance.

When the Lord says, "Repent and believe in the gospel," He is basically saying: change your mind about sin and return to God by believing the good news! In order to be saved, we must repent. Repentance means not just running back to God, but running away from anything that would keep us from God.

This sacrament of penance is a visible assurance that God has not abandoned us. He has not dismissed us as irredeemable. God offers us countless opportunities for us to repent, to amend our lives. But let us not live with the presumption that we will have more time and so delay our repentance and return to do His will.

ST. THERESE OF THE CHILD JESUS, CARMELITE, VIRGIN DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH, PATRON OF THE MISSIONS

TO SAVE SOULS

Thérèse Françoise Marie Martin Alençon was born on January 2, 1873 to a couple of jewellers and watchmakers. They were deeply devout believers. She was the last of eight children, three of whom died in childhood. She was orphaned of her mother at the age of four, while each of her four sisters in turn entered Carmelite life.

She entered the Carmel of Lisieux at the age of 15, by special permission of Pope Leo XIII, whom Thérèse himself had begged in Rome. “If God wills, you will enter,” was the Pope's response.

The girl's desire was to “save souls,” and above all “to pray in aid of priests.” Sister Theresa of the Child Jesus and of the Holy Face is the name she took at her profession. At the suggestion of her superiors, she immediately began to keep a diary, in which he noted the stages of her inner life. She wrote in 1895, “On June 9, the feast of the Most Holy Trinity, I have the grace to understand more than ever that Jesus wants to be loved.”

THE “LITTLE WAY”

Thérèse elaborated a highly original and powerful spirituality, called the “theology of the little way” or “spiritual childhood”, which bases the practice of love for God not on great actions, but in everyday - seemingly insignificant - acts. In her autobiography, Thérèse writes, “There is only one thing to do: throw the flowers of the small sacrifices to Jesus.” And elsewhere, “I want to teach the little methods that have worked for me.”

Not understood by the sisters of the Carmel, Thérèse says she received “more thorns than roses” but accepts with patience the injustices and persecutions, as well as the pain and fatigue of illness, offering everything “for the needs of the Church,” in order, “to cast roses on all, the just and sinners.”

HER DEATH, AND THE “STORY OF A SOUL”

After nine years of religious life, Thérèse died of tuberculosis at the age of only 24, on September 30, 1897. In 1923 she was beatified by Pope Pius XI, who considered her the “star of his pontificate” and then canonized in 1925.

The Archdiocesan Mental Health Ministry's (AMHM) annual World Mental Health Day event is returning; and this year, collaborating with the Malaysia Mind-Body Medical Practitioners Association (MBMPA) to carry out this year's installment under the theme "Care for Caregivers".

This year, the focus is towards the needs of the caregiver, who are often overlooked in the dynamic. The caregiver not only consists of those who do it professionally but to everyone who provides care to someone, whether they may be a mother, a father, a child to their parents, a spouse, or even a guardian. All caregivers will go through their struggles oftentimes masked by their responsibilities to look after their loved ones.

Cv

Therefore, in this year's World Mental Health Day, we aim to have their voices heard and to equip them with the necessary skills and strategies to carry forward with their compassion-bound duties.

Practice doing good

"Whatever gains I had, these I have come to regard as loss because of Christ." (Phil 3:7)

"This Word of Life speaks to us of the need for personal conversion and a profound change of mentality. It speaks to us of humility, simplicity and detachment from ourselves, above all, of doing good and giving witness to our faith. It speaks to us of abandoning habits we hang on to and restoring to our Christian life new energy and thrust so that the beauty of the Gospel can shine forth. It urges us to underscore what is essential and more universal in Jesus' message, that is, listening to His Word and serving our neighbours."

Peace starts within our hearts.

"Just as every pruning produces new life in a plant, every time Christians give up something out of the love for Christ, they experience a burst of happiness. Let us make the decision to do away with everything that should not be in our hearts. If we do so, heaven will be ours in a few years and already now we will experience a deep sense of peace."

Phil 4:7)

CHOOSE Thankfulness

It shifts your focus.
It changes your attitude.
It opens the door to God's blessings.

Every good thing you have is a gift from God.

Be Thankful
for today,
for your family,
for His grace,
and for His love that never fails.

THERE IS ALWAYS SOMETHING to be thankful for.

Take care of creation

We belong to God for the very simple reason that God is our Creator and our Savior. He created us and gave us His Son so that we might participate in His life and His joy. Let us concentrate on living the commandment that is closest to the heart of Jesus - love of neighbour. We can think of ways to show greater care for the sick and the elderly, for the education of our children and, why not also give greater attention to obeying the rules of the road and to showing more respect for the environment?
